

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A card connector includes a rotatable ejecting lever having a first end and a second end and supported by a fixed journal, the second end moving in the direction of ejecting a card to eject the card when the first end is pushed in the direction of inserting the card; and distance varying means increasing the distance from the journal to the contact point between the ejecting lever and the card during ejection of the card.